Influenza Mortality—Rangoon—July–December, 1918.

According to the annual report of the health officer of Rangoon (Burma), India, 3,699 deaths from influenza were reported there during the six months ended December 31, 1918; 531 deaths from pneumonia and 1,162 from other respiratory diseases were reported during the same period. The distribution of these deaths by months and the annual death rates per 1,000 population are shown in the following table:

Month.	Number of deaths.			Annual death rate per 1,000 population.
	Influenza.	Pneumonia.	Other respiratory diseases.	Influenza.	Pneumonia.	Other respiratory diseases.

The estimated population of Rangoon for the mid year 1918, was 323,157.

The persons chiefly affected by the disease were the coolie class and domestic servants. In the latter part of the year the better class of Indians also suffered severely. Among Mohammedans and Burmese the deaths occurred chiefly in the poorer class, but to a less degree than among Hindus.

The height of the epidemic was reached in the week ended November 2, 1918. The cases were at first mild in character, but at the height of the rise a large number were complicated with virulent pneumonia.

The distribution according to races was as follows:

	Deaths.

SPAIN.Influenza Mortality—May–December, 1918.

Information published by the Institute of Geography and Statistics of Madrid, quoted in the Bulletin of the International Office of Public Hygiene for July, 1919, states the total number of fatalities from influenza reported in Spain from May to December, 1918, as 140,451. Of these, 948 occurred at Madrid (estimated population, Sept. 30, 1918, 634,253); 1,557 at Barcelona (estimated population, January, 1919, 800,000); at other provincial capitals, 13,496; other localities in Spain, 124,450. The data for the month of December are stated not to be complete.

From 741 fatalities in May, 1918, the number of influenza deaths in June, 1918, rose to 2,923, descending in July and August. The disease showed a recrudescence in September, 1918, with 7,837 deaths, and attained its culminating point in October with 73,484. In November the occurrence was 40,478.

The average mortality caused by influenza for the year 1918 was 7.20 per 1,000. The proportion exceeded that of pulmonary tuberculosis, which in 1918 caused 36,312 deaths, or a mortality of 2.99 per 1,000 in the provincial capitals and 1.25 per 1,000 for the rest of Spain.
